

Future Leaders Academy – Leadership Workshop

March 2022

Learning by Scoffolding, with Values Cards

Over the past three months, Future Leaders Academy members have been expanding their leadership capacity through a scaffolding process where each module builds off previous sessions.

In month one, participants completed the Values Cards Exercise and identified their personal values. In month two, participants examined their goals and what they want most out of life. During month three, facilitators Ryan Goulart and LaCresia King led interactive activities to help participants understand how individual thoughts and behaviors can help or hinder one's ability to achieve desired goals.

This month, Future Leaders Academy members will learn strategies and tactics for integrating the emotional, moral, and purposeful aspects of self-leadership into their daily lives. In May, participants will work on refining the skills they've learned. Then in June, participants will celebrate their progress and kick-off the year-long mentorship component of the Future Leaders Academy. Each participant is matched with a seasoned leader for mentoring guidance and support from June 2022 to June 2023. Through this ongoing mentorship, participants will continue to develop and deepen the emotional and moral capacities of a highly valued leader.
